

Georgia Peach Tumbles, But Still Leads---Griffs Look Bad as Jungaleers Win

COBB TUMBLES BUT STILL LEADS ENEMY WITH WORK AT BAT

Though he has fallen out of the .400 class, Ty Cobb, the Dixie Demon, continues to hold first place among big league hitters. Jake Daubert, the National League leader, has a mark of .372, some distance behind Cobb's .396. Ty remains the best run getter and base thief in his circuit, giving all opponents a merry chase to catch him.

Joe Jackson, the Cleveland slugger, has passed Jacques Fournier, having a four-point margin over the White Sox batsman.

Eddie Collins is steadily climbing into the .300 class, his rightful place. He has only three points to go before landing in the select circle of batters.

Eddie Foster is the Griffen's leading hitter, with a mark of .274. Next to him is Hank Shanks, hitting for .271. A long fall in the figures finds Rippy Williams with .247, Morgan with .245, and Milan with .240.

GRIFFMEN CLIMB IN FIELDING.

Though holding last place in club batting, with figures of .225, the Griffmen have climbed into third place for club fielding, having reached .963. The White Sox are the best hitting team, with Detroit and New York leading the way in the field.

AS HE LOOKS ANSWERING YOUR CHEERS

TYRUS RAYMOND COBB.

The great and only Georgia Peach, who is playing better ball this season than he has for five years. Many believe that, if he is not injured, he will practically win the flag himself for the Jennings Jungaleers.

GRIFFMEN ERR AND TIGERS WIN, 5 TO 3

Ty Cobb Comes Out of Lethargy and Runs Rings Around Home Boys.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

The Griffen's err yesterday. Not the way you mean, either. They thought they were on the road again and proceeded to show a few home fans some of the stuff they displayed on their recent trip through the West. The Tigers, who were in evidence yesterday on numerous occasions, were the day before and gave a slight indication of how he can play when he wants to. He cracked out a couple of hits, scored a couple of runs, seized five flies after running from Jake to take in the outfield and stole three bases, one of them being the home plate. Outside of that, all he did was to spike John Henry and bring Rippy Williams into the game. Rippy did the rest. What did Rippy do? He gave the Tigers three runs all by himself, which some achievement, come to think of it. Seeking causes, you must admit that T. Cobb was responsible for many things in that second game of the series at Georgia avenue.

Bill Steen went along merrily for six innings. Then he weakened, allowed three hits in succession and went away from that place. Harry Coveleskie replaced him and stopped the Griffen's cold, forcing Gandil to smash into a double play that closed the inning.

Joe Boehling, wild as any hawk, escaped to twirl for the home boys. He lasted seven innings during which he gave ten hits and seven passes. He didn't look very good, but he looked fully as good as his support. With Bush gone, Kavanaugh and Cobb singled in the first. Crawford perished and Veatch was passed. Kavanaugh was forced across with the first run, when Burns drew a free ticket. To make things interesting, Cobb, Veatch, and Burns worked some triple steal, the Georgia Peach scoring and speaking Henry on the throwing in. Boehling's sleepy windup allowed the steal and
